WINDOWS ON OUR SOULS: A Spiritual Excavation

By SARAH HALL and BOB SHANTZ

This inspiring and uncommonly beautiful book for prayer and meditation presents in contemporary words and images an interpretation of some of the earliest examples of Christian expression.

Peter Larisey, s.j., has written an informative and thought-provoking foreword in which he gives the historical and theological context for the art found in the catacombs. He describes the role of this art in helping to create the foundations for the very earliest Christian art.

Using stained glass, award-winning artist Sarah Hall explores the religious imagery found in the catacombs of Rome. Here persecuted early Christians used simple illustrations to depict their faith of living "in glad confidence in the love of God."

Using prayerful, meditative words, Bob Shantz further interprets Hall's art as well as the original story it is based on. The result of this collaboration is a book of wonder and deep reflection.
